Premiership Round-Up

Down Under And Out proved once more they are the team to beat as they won their THIRD successive League Title. The arrival of Barker at Town provided a brave fightback but it was too late as Town join Trent in slipping down a division. Its a record-breaking season for Deck as they finish the season with a 100% winning record and All Whites will join them for season nine in The LS Premiership.

Untidy End to Season for Temple

Irish Raiders inflicted more misery on TT with a resounding 3-1 away win on the last day of the season.

Temple tried some of the youngsters into the side to get a bit of experience for the coming promotion campaign, but they were clearly taught a lesson in a messy affair with 3 bookings and chances going 11-4 raiders way.

Time to reflect and knuckle down ready for next season. Just hope the hammers get the results they need today cause they sure as hell aint getting anything up at the Mancs the way they are playing.

Do not want a double whammy relegation.

Raiders happy overall

A last day win against temple town secured Irish Raiders another top three finish for the season. Having never finished outside the top three since gaining promotion to this division the manager was happy with the overall performances this season.

"We won the CUP and finished in the top three again. Overall "JOB DONE" is the way I feel. Another piece of silverware for the trophy room and a good performance in the league. Next season of course we will be defending CUP champions and that of course will carry its own problems. A good change report is needed if we are to stay with the top teams in the league and I will be going to the bank manager this time to try gain some advantage before the season begins."

DUAO Reign Supreme Any doubt of a final day upset was eliminated within 10 minutes of play, as Daniel Kibble squeezed a neat through ball to Julian Stafne who struck it easily past Trent's junior keeper. Stafne, who was playing his last match before retiring, put in a standout performance scoring twice and setting up another to help DUAO on their way to a 4-1 victory.

Wookie was pitch side for the following comments:

"Once...Twice...Three Times a Champion!

It's no easy feat to be successful in the LS Premiership, so all those teams who have taken part this season deserve some credit. However I'll say more about that at a later date, now... it's our day and it's time to celebrate!

There have been some real tests and challenges throughout this season but the lads have showed once again that they have what it takes to rise above the rest. The Team has learnt much from the experiences gained by winning the LS Premiership three times and have developed a unusual maturity for such a young team. Being such a young team, I have high hopes that there will be many more trophy's picked up in the coming seasons."

No Win Again

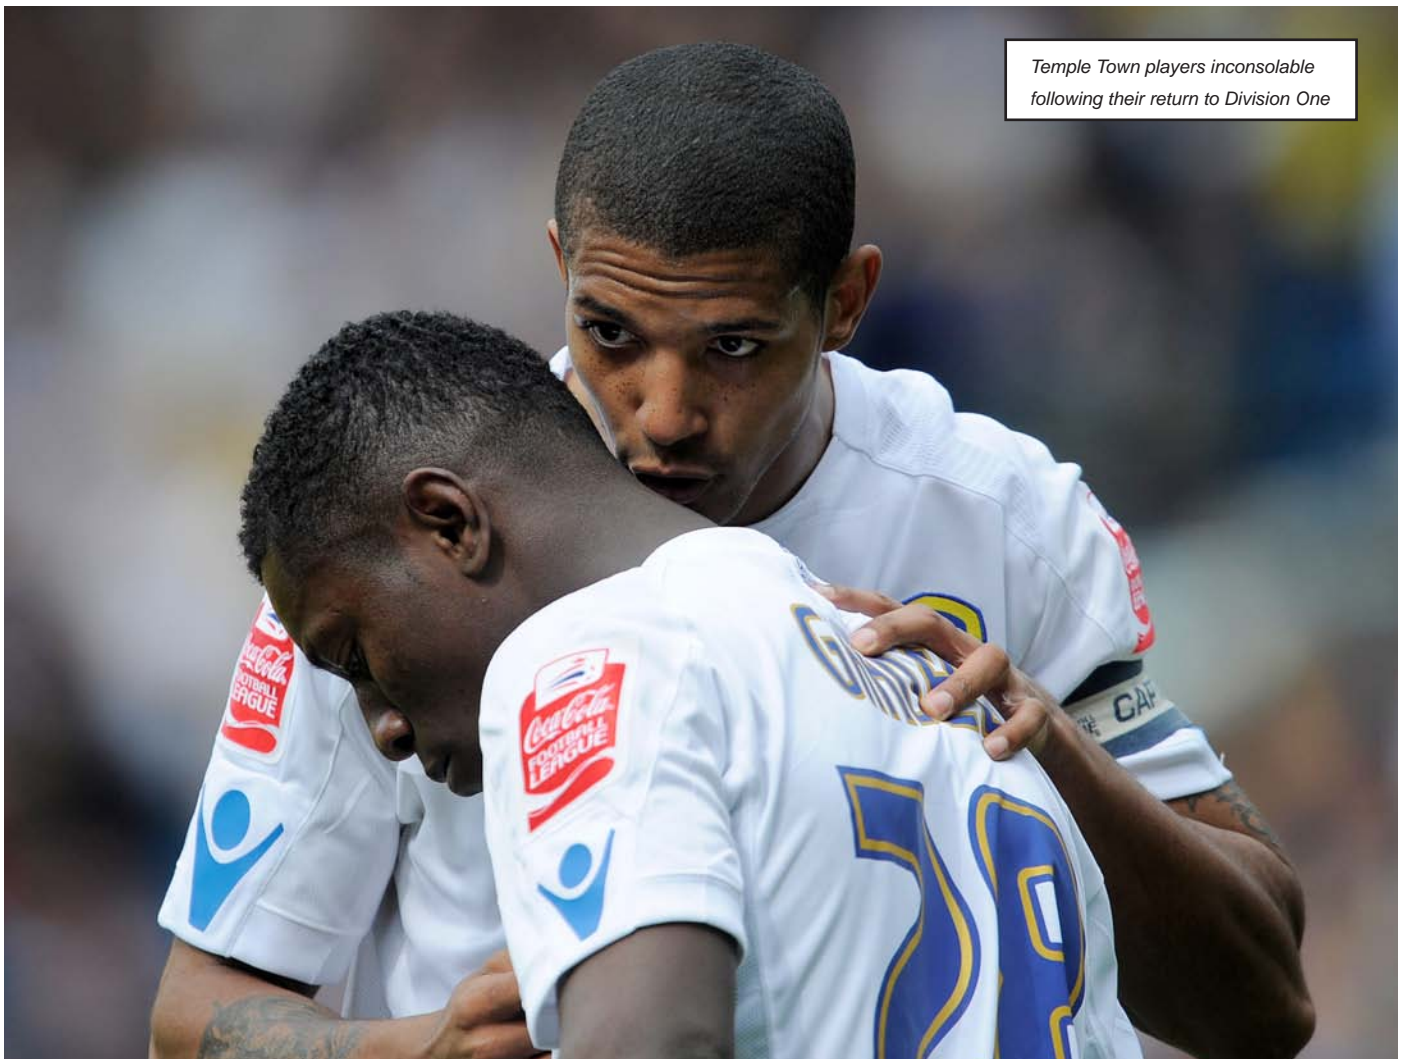

Red Machine FC continued their poor run of form (six games without a win) with a 2-0 defeat against age old rival Egloshayle Park. Manager Couch looked relieved when the final whistle went.

“The only reason left to play for this afternoon between the two sides was pride. To be honest, except for two of my players out there, and I want be afraid to name them, Neal Stamford and Sergio Di Cinto were exceptional. Two of my midfielders put in a shift Benny Great and Horace Logan - but the rest of the team didn't turn up. I must congratulate Mitchell on his sides turn of form in the second half of the season, at one point they were looking like relegation contenders. I am just glad the season has finished, as I believe we would've had a relegation fight on our hands the way we were playing.”

“It's now time for the players to decide if they want to play for this club next season, with some I have already made that decision for them.”

“I must congratulate DUAO and manger of the moment Wookie. It is no mean feat to win the LS Premiership, but to win it three times in a row is a massive achievement. Also, well done to the two Division 1 teams who won promotion - The Rising Deck and All Whites. Especially to Magic, who won the league without a single defeat.”

100% Deck Rewrite the Record Books

We have finally caught up with Ian 'Magic' Mitch The Ringmaster (ugggh) at The Rising Deck after signing copies of his new Hardback Book titled '100% Winning without VIP, The Magic Formula from a Jap's Eye' at The Guinness Book of Records today.

"It's been a remarkable season that simply cannot be bettered 14 out of 14 wins in the league, Houdin an ever present in the Xpert11 teams and knocking in 16 goals in the process, a mere 7 goals conceded and over 40 scored and all our tactics laid bare for all to see week in week out.

The 4-0 win away to Essex Wanderers was a great way to sign off with young rookie midfielder 'Eddie Smart' grabbing himself a brace and Houdin getting his 16th goal of the season all helped by another clean sheet.

We need a good pre season now as we need to continue this run of form and hit the ground running at the start of another attempt at The Premier Crown next season.

A big congratulations to the All Whites on their promotion and also to Wookie who has led his DUAO team to a truly remarkable 3rd premier title on the trot.

Well done to all managers who stuck with the campaign through hard times and didn't chuck the towel in like the two losers who did so and attempt to fuck up the league in mid season, childish fucking pricks!

If you haven't ordered our Magic Season round up from Amazon or Waterstones (other literay stores are available) then check out the last 3 match revelations in the latest Xpert11 Mag out shortly.

On that note a huge thankyou must go out to Egloshayle Park's Craig Mitchell who has produced eyecatching magazines, when given enough information, throughout the season at his own time (or more like it his works time!!)

That's all for now small stems

Too little too late

After a long season, when yet again lady luck befriended the devil during many of our matches, we have finished strongly. we have won three games on the trot and even put away five goals in our final game. we had a small squad this season so everyone has worked tirelessly and The boys are now off on a well deserved rest.

It is now my job to work hard in the close season trying to build the squad so we can start next season in the style we have finished this.

Let's hope that lady luck starts to spend more time looking down on us instead of up!!

Top Teams Happy With Change report

Change Report

Mangi manager was pretty happy with the recent change report. There were obvious players who weren't going to improve as they had sat out most of the season with injuries. But with an overall increase of 10 it's a good sign for the next season. I have already transfer listed one of our strikers & be looking to bring in fresh legs there. That is about it this window as I spent quite a bit during the last season.

How was your guys?
Who wants a friendly....

CR Good but not Spectacular

DUAO's Manager, Wookie, gave a ballsy press release to his fans summing up the season and looking forward to the next:

We've had a solid CR but my expectations are very high and so I'm a little disappointed as one or two of my players didn't get that visible skill increase I was hoping for. However overall, I believe that we've more than matched the best of the rest. In summary this season DUAO have:

- maintained our ranking as the highest skilled team, and increased a visible skill bar
- Increased our clubs wealth
- Recorded the highest match rating and overall match rating
- Increased our All Time standing from 5th to 3rd - leap frogging the Deck and the Destroyers in the process
- Increased our squad value to over 150 million and widened the gap between our nearest rivals by another 10 million econ
- Picked up our 3rd successive title

Ohh yes and...

- Continued week in and week out to get voted a poor coach by Xpert 11's best selection committee.

However fans can rest assured that I'll remain in charge next season and that once again my target will be to bring yet more silverware to this great club. Although I'm confident that our current team is strong enough to bring home it's 4th successive title, new signings, in the close, are not out of the question.

Friendlies

Back to back friendly wins and a favourable change report should put the All Whites in with a good chance of staying up this season. We're just looking into a few key potential signings to support what is starting to look like a reasonable squad of players. Whens the new season starting?

Week 12 v Away to Dark Destroyers

Week 12 brought us up against that bad mouthed, dirty bunch of tossers, The Dark Destroyers, led by Mr. Adrian Mitchell aka The Chieftain. We had been planning this visit for weeks and decided to simply fight fire with fire and turn his nasty habits back on his club to leave them totally flummoxed.

Penn Jillette death defyingly en route to the Theatre of Doom

An infiltration into the clubs canteen to tamper with his team's pre-match meal was carried out by Penn Jillette who cleverly entered The Theatre of Doom under The Destroyers catering lorry. Using the well known spell 'Pastaticus Touretticus' Penn managed to time delay tins of Alphabet Spaghetti to form words to be shown to players whilst dining at lunch on the Thursday of our tie.

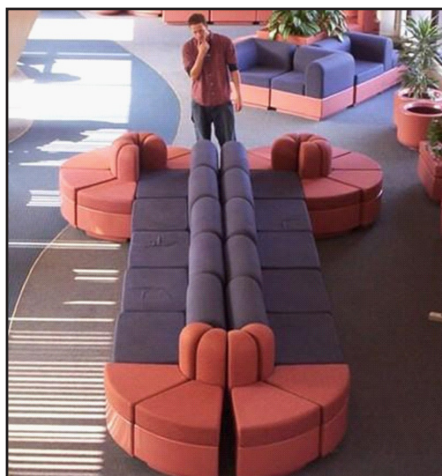

The Destroyers pre-match meal gives a whole new meaning to the phrase 'He gave me a right ol' mouthful'

Next task for us was a daring attempt at 'The Card thru Window' trick to be performed on a large scale by Ty Tass, the girlfriend of Paul Zenon. This was to be attempted at Midnight on the eve of our Match at the Hospitality Suite of the Destroyers. Excitingly this was executed to perfection. Upon entry the multi skilled Ty replaced the tardy Suite with a phallic design of our own that would offend and upset all associated with the club.

Ty Tass in her skimpy skirt before flashing us her 'Vertical Smile'

The Chieftain's new suite looking suspiciously like a Kipper Dipper complete with Whisker Biscuits

Brothers Ira & William Davenport came up with a great weather effect which they named 'Sitonicus thisyamuthafuckas' which would create obscene cloud formations behind the goal that The Destroyers would be attacking.

Sit on my Rodzilla!!!!

These acts of Pinkstinkery totally baffled the players and coaching staff so much that they were largely ineffective for large parts of our encounter and we eventually managed to grind them down to win 2-0 and extend our All Record breaking run to 12 wins out of 12 !!

Sadly The Dark Destroyers bad manners again raised their, literal, ugly head in The Players/Wives lounge after the match when The Chieftain's secretary 'Vi Alcant' tried 'coming on' to our own secretary 'Norma Stitts' that was captured on camera with possible action being considered by ourselves.

Week 13: Home to Westcountry Wanderers

Week 13 was our last home game of the season and we welcomed fellow Cornishman Paul Hewitt back for a short visit to the county with his Westcountry Wanderers. Having used our surveillance to monitor Hewey's training tactics we also noticed that his squad like to bring their wives with them for away games and being fitness fanatics they booked several sporting venues within the county to take the opportunity to keep in shape.

Hewey is also known to encourage plenty of 'Stirring up Skirt Yoghurt' in the bedroom for his players and wives on the eve of matches so we knew if we managed to cast 'inferneo snatchalightus' on cans of the favourite choice of beverage hotly preferred by the Westcountry WAGS then this would surely be transferred from wife to player during any dirty acts between the sheets that may occur.

Knowing that the team bus of WW would be loaded with pasties shortly before departure from The Cove a quick swap of the accompanying beverages for our own poisoned brew by our own catering spy in their camp would be all that was needed to trigger off a chain of events that would hopefully lead to problems for their players on Match day.

The Westcountry Wanderers WAGS choice of tippie that was to start off such a damaging chain of events.

The swap was easily accomplished just before the coach's departure on the morning before the match and upon arrival at their sporting venues that afternoon signs of tuppence problems started to appear. By the time the players and their wives retired to their boudoirs later that evening the potion was eager to be transferred to any couples participating in the act of 'Yoldoling in the Valley'

The first sign of possible success was noted when the Wanderers team sheet was seen in our dressing room and the name of defender Edwin Carden (who can't get his cock to harden) wasn't in the starting eleven. Apparently he was expected to start but complained of pain in the pant department upon arrival at The Orpheum.

Edwin Carden's wife has a burning problem in her 'Vaj Mahal'

The second, and for us most important, casualty came in only the 7th minute when skilful Midfielder Don Ashe (flaccid when faced with gash) had such trouble down below that he hastily indicated to the bench that he was unable to continue.

These two successes were fortunately enough for our team to get such an advantage that a comfortable 3-0 win was in the bag and left just one match to go in the season to hopefully achieve the impossible...a 100% winning season????

The Final Game

From The One With No Shame

Week 14: Away to Essex

The final week in an incredible season was away to Anthony Bulley's Essex Wanderers and with the eyes of the media from all over the world upon us the pressure was on to complete the perfect season.

Our plans for this game were going really well until just as we had completed a quite complicated formula for a potion we had been working on for a week. This was added to our extensive book of secrets of the Magic Trade when on the eve of the match our offices at The Orpheum were broken into and the said Volume of priceless alchemy was stolen. No.1 suspect was The Essex Wanderers boss who was looking to thwart our glorious season at the final hurdle.

With these vast formulas out of our reach we were facing a panic filled 24 hours in need of this ancient collection to be returned to the home of Wizardry (most of it between the sheets). To our huge surprise our young rookie Jermaine Meadows suggested we attempt to get a search warrant of the office of the Wanderers chief in an attempt to retrieve the stolen goods. In order to obtain the warrant he suggested we 'set up' the club by putting stolen goods in the Essex players cars thus sparking a police raid then our own accusations would hold more weight and be taken seriously.

A Magic Multiplying seed sown in the greenhouses of Cockwarts, our school of Magic, in Cornwall was to be inserted into the players cars engines by our club Mechanic 'Norma Snockers' which would rapidly multiply and grow into ripe fruit within 30 minutes. This was carried out at 1:30 on the afternoon of the match and an anonymous call was then made to the police as to stolen goods at Rainham Marshes.

At 2pm the police arrived to find the vehicles filled with suspicious quantities of fruit and as we departed our team coach our lawyer 'Nida Pee' demanded she had the right to search Bulley's Office. This wish was granted and just as the Essex boss was fine tuning his team tactics and line up Nina stormed into the room to wreak havoc and retrieve our precious book in the process.

The chaos this caused The Wanderers preparations were sufficient enough to let us steamroller a 4-0 win.

Further events were to unfold however as Rising Deck Manager Ian 'Magic' Mitch, clearly intoxicated by copious glasses of Courvoisier, fulfilled his promise in a bet about a 100% winning season, by dropping his slacks and showing his 'Monster Mutton Gun' to all and sundry in the Stadium.

This led to his arrest upon his leaving the ground on his way to a hastily arranged surprise press conference as rumour of his season's Magic Tactics reached Xpert11 headquarters.

Alerted by this news the powers that be threatened to strip The Deck of their title unless Mitch could prove otherwise as to his Tricky tactics.

Because of the urgency of this meeting MagicMitch allowed the female police officer, who raunchily handcuffed him, a brief cup of his Giggle Berries in exchange for a quick release. A quick dash to the press conference followed where 'Magic' showed his actual formula for a 100% winning season to a frenzied media and Xpert11 Top Brass. As they were unable to disprove the Formula they had no option but to allow The Rising Deck to return to a packed Cornwall and their home at The Orpheum where they boarded a coach for the familiar open decked tour with The Trophy and bring to an end a season that will forever live in the memory of all football fans and will go down in Fantasy Football Folklore.
